

eMerge For Medical Offices

eMerge provides enhanced telecom services for the unique requirements of medical offices. These services exceed the capabilities of PBXs without the management overhead and risk.

With eMerge service, medical offices can improve patient satisfaction, streamline operations, and increase staff work flexibility. eMerge packages are available that include both voice and data services along with enhanced voice features that integrate multiple secondary sites, home offices, and remote staff.

Medical Office Challenges

Medical offices support a range of activities that include patient check-in, scheduling, records management, treatment, referrals, diagnosis, and testing. Sometimes the bottleneck in completing these activities is a quick phone call. eMerge provides intelligent call routing, speed dial, along with click to call functionality that efficiently connect callers and speed task completion.

Medical offices are increasingly adopting new technologies to improve operations. These technologies often introduce complications and usability issues. In contrast, eMerge provides new capabilities without sacrificing simplicity. Services are configured in real-time with an intuitive web interface.

Finally, office operations revolve around doctors, nurses, administrators, lab staff, and others. Each job is different and needs tailored communications support. eMerge provides enhanced calling features that can be tailored to support mobility and work-at-home that each position might require.

eMerge offers significant savings for medical offices. When compared with the costs for PBX maintenance and support, lease expenses, line connectivity, telephone numbers, long distance/local minutes, and any carrier services fees, eMerge can offer as much as 30% savings.

eMerge also addresses the problem of managing multiple vendors. eMerge packages include most of the services most medical offices need, eliminating management overhead of different vendors. eMerge also enables offices to merge voice and data networks and eliminate maintenance costs for two sets of wiring.

eMerge Service Bundles

Typical eMerge packages include connectivity, generous quantity of local and long distance minutes, enhanced voice features, IP data connectivity, and data services.

For firms with multiple offices, service bundles are matched to the office size and staff requirements, whether it's a home office or a larger site with multiple connections. eMerge offers a consistent set of features to all staff regardless of location.
